What is a report?

A report is a systematic well-organized document which defines, analyses and critically evaluate a subject leading to informed conclusions supported by evidence.

Planning & writing

Planning

1. Make sure that assignment brief is fully understood.
2. Do the research.
3. Organize the contents.

Writing

4. Critically examine the material gathered.
5. Prepare a draft.
6. Proof read the report before submission.

Paraphrase paragraphs

7. Don't only copy/paste.
8. Structure sentences in your own way instead of copying the structure of the original reference or book.
9. Change sentences to better incorporate into your paragraphs.

Layout of the report

Title page

The title page should normally include the name of the University, the name of the faculty, title of the report, student's name and ID, date, block (number & title), week number, team number., and the name of the tutor to whom it is being submitted.

Contents page

List of chapters /sections headings, and list of illustrations (tables & figures) with corresponding page numbers.

Abstract

A concise overview of the report that should be able to be read as a stand-alone section.

Main body of the report

There should be an introduction that explain what the report is about. It should also include, as appropriate, any methodology, results & discussions.

For the main body of the report, sub-headings to be used, should reflect the content of the material under discussion.

Conclusion

Captures the main findings & explanations from the report noting that neither new ideas nor citations should be included here. Conclusion may also include recommendations.

Referencing

In-text citations in addition to references list at the end of the report. Can adopt Harvard style.

Presenting data & illustrations

Tables, figures & diagrams should be labelled, inserted and discussed, otherwise it will add no value to the report and it will be waste of time.
